LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVE ALLIANCE

YOUR FREEDOM. YOUR FUTURE.

A freer Caprica.
A government you can trust.

MANIFESTO 2072 / OUR PROGRAMME TO 2076

The case for a new LCA government.

LIBERTY / OPPORTUNITY / RESPONSIBILITY

THE CHOICE / 2072

A new mandate. A different direction.

After four years in opposition, our programme starts with limits on power and a fair chance to build a life.

The case for change 03

The first 100 days 05

Three choices 04

How we will be judged 31

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

Civil liberties 07

Intelligence and secrecy 08

Integrity in government 09

Technology and your rights 10

Policing and justice 11

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

A new settlement at work 13

Enterprise and competition 14

Tax and ownership 15

Homes and secure renting 16

Schools and early years 17

Skills, science and fair entry 18

Regional opportunity 19

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

CU reform and diplomacy 21

Trade and migration 22

Defence and readiness 23

National resilience 24

Health and timely care 25

Families, care and retirement 26

Energy and climate 27

Transport and infrastructure 28

An honest fiscal starting point 29

Funding and implementation 30

Commitments are proposals for the next Parliament. Funding conditions: pages 29-30.

FOUR YEARS IN OPPOSITION

We are asking for a new mandate.

In 2068, voters sent the LCA into opposition. We accept that verdict. Four years later, we are asking to earn your confidence with a programme for the country as it is now, and a clear account of what we would change.

Caprica should be a place where your voice belongs to you, your work can take you further and your future does not depend on knowing an insider. A capable state should protect those freedoms and provide the foundations on which ordinary ambitions become possible.

The government's intelligence and labour proposals would concentrate power beyond public scrutiny and impose more compulsory arrangements at work. Threats to leave the Columbian Union add uncertainty where our country needs steady partnerships. Caprica needs a government that protects security, opportunity and trust while respecting individual freedom.

Our answer is practical. Put intrusive surveillance under judges. Make workplace representation voluntary and democratic. Share the cost of family leave fairly. Challenge rules that shelter incumbents. Build homes near jobs and transport. Negotiate CU reform while keeping our place at the table.

Returning to government would not entitle us to unchecked power either. The safeguards in this manifesto would bind LCA ministers as firmly as their opponents. Independent courts, open contracts and honest accounts are commitments to the citizen, whoever wins the next election.

We will begin with the books as they are, protect rights people have already earned and publish what each reform costs before committing money. We ask for the opportunity to govern with restraint, ambition and respect for the people who lend us their authority.

Liberal-Conservative Alliance

Your freedom. Your future.

THE DIFFERENCE YOUR VOTE MAKES

Put your future back in your hands.

Our programme connects the freedom to disagree, the chance to get ahead and the confidence to plan a life.

01

LIBERTY

Power under law.

Judges before intrusion. No parallel intelligence army. Independent scrutiny of secrecy and spending. These limits will apply to our own government.

READ THE PLAN / 08

02

OPPORTUNITY

A fair chance to begin.

Secret workplace ballots. Shared leave insurance. Portable skills. A challenge to rules that keep new firms and qualified newcomers out.

READ THE PLAN / 13

03

CONFIDENCE

Steady at home and abroad.

Build more homes. Fund care honestly. Lead CU reform from within. Publish a new fiscal baseline and an accountable programme to 2076.

READ THE PLAN / 21

Begin with limits on power.

The first 100 days are a timetable for action and introduced legislation. Parliament must scrutinise and approve changes to the law.

01 Secure the record.

Order lawful preservation of intelligence and procurement records. Give independent inspectors access. Review disputed operations through existing legal authority, without interrupting essential protection.

02 Open the books.

Commission an independent fiscal and liabilities audit for publication within 100 days. Release the verified housing baseline and a register of major public commitments.

03 Bring the bills to Parliament.

Introduce liberty restoration, public integrity and fair-work legislation with clause-by-clause explanations. Publish transition protections for employees, existing claims and lawful security functions.

04 Set a dependable course.

Publish the domestic consultation agenda for a CU Reform Compact, to be put forward within six months. Set first-budget priorities and a public register of manifesto commitments.

Liberty under law.

Your private life. Your right to disagree. A government that has to answer for what it does.

POWER THAT ANSWERS TO YOU

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

Your rights do not belong to ministers.

You should be able to criticise a president, join a cause and live a private life without asking permission. Our first duty in government will be to put government back within its limits.

A Liberty Restoration Bill

Introduce legislation in the first 100 days to repeal coercive provisions of the government's intelligence and labour settlement wherever enacted and reject those still proposed. Publish the clauses, rights assessment and transition arrangements. Parliament and the courts must remain able to examine every replacement power.

Disagreement is not disloyalty

Protect political, religious, academic and artistic expression, including the right not to believe. Peaceful opposition, journalism and criticism of the Columbian Union or its critics must never be treated as evidence of disloyalty. Apply precise laws to threats and violence.

Equal citizenship, without a test of loyalty

Defend equal treatment, marriage rights and freedom from unlawful discrimination. Public jobs, grants and essential services must not depend on party membership, union affiliation or ideological declarations. Require objective criteria, written reasons and a route of appeal.

An emergency must have an end

Give new exceptional executive powers a 90-day expiry unless Parliament renews them on published reasons. Preserve access to courts throughout. Require separate scrutiny of each power instead of bundling unrelated restrictions into a single emergency vote.

Privacy with a remedy

Require a lawful purpose, minimum necessary collection and published retention limits for personal data. Give an independent commissioner power to order correction, deletion and compensation where justified. Notify people of serious misuse unless a judge authorises a temporary delay.

Rights you can actually enforce

Expand targeted legal assistance for serious rights claims within a published budget. Make official complaints free, require reasoned decisions and allow appeal to an independent body. Publish compliance with remedies so a successful complaint leads to a real correction.

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

Keep us safe. Keep power answerable.

Caprica needs capable intelligence services with defined missions. Security cannot become a licence for secret armies, political interference or surveillance that no person is responsible for authorising.

A judge before intrusion

Preserve the Nuremberg Act framework and require specific judicial warrants for intrusive surveillance. Urgent action must be submitted for review within 48 hours and cease if refused. No autonomous system may expand a surveillance target or mission without accountable human authorisation.

No intelligence-controlled army

Remove authority for intelligence agencies to maintain independent combat formations. Put lawful military capabilities under the defence chain of command and parliamentary appropriations. Review personnel and equipment individually, preserve evidence and protect lawful whistleblowers during the transition.

An absolute prohibition on torture

Prohibit torture, cruel treatment and euphemisms that attempt to authorise either. Require lawful detention records, independent inspection and access to legal safeguards. Investigate credible allegations through independent authorities, with due process for everyone concerned.

No covert political manipulation

Ban covert operations intended to manipulate foreign elections or peaceful political activity. End authorities for theft, sabotage and misuse of civilian aviation identities outside lawful defensive operations. Any exceptional operation must meet domestic law, treaty obligations and explicit ministerial accountability.

Secrecy must be justified again

End blanket seventy-year secrecy. Review classified records at least every five years and presume release after 20 years. An independent reviewer may approve narrow, time-limited extensions to protect lives or genuine operational needs. Never classify information merely to conceal wrongdoing.

Oversight with the files and the budget

Give a multiparty parliamentary committee and independent inspector full classified access, including spending and human-rights findings. Publish an aggregate intelligence budget and redacted annual report. Redactions must be reviewable; neither ministers nor agencies may veto investigations into their own conduct.

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

The state is not a private club.

A public contract should go to the best offer. A public job should go to a qualified applicant. Knowing the minister must never be the most valuable qualification in Caprica.

A Public Integrity Act

Publish ministerial meetings, gifts, lobbying contacts and beneficial ownership of public contractors in searchable registers. Require ministers to disclose relevant interests and recuse themselves from conflicting decisions. Apply the same rules to state enterprises and publicly funded intermediaries.

Close the revolving door

Require a two-year cooling-off period before ministers and senior procurement officials lobby their former departments or accept work on contracts they supervised. An independent ethics authority will issue binding decisions, with published reasons and judicial appeal.

Appointments on merit

Advertise senior public vacancies and publish selection criteria and panel membership. Protect an impartial civil service from partisan purges. Record exceptional direct appointments, their reasons and duration; Parliament must be able to examine them without exposing applicants' private information.

Follow the whole contract

Publish tender scores, subcontracting interests, amendments and delivery results. Flag repeated emergency awards and unexplained single bids for audit. Protect commercial secrets narrowly, with independent review, rather than hiding the price and performance of public services.

Independent investigation

Give the anti-corruption prosecutor and audit bodies secure statutory terms, protected budgets and access to records. Ministers must not direct individual cases. Protect lawful disclosures and witnesses while preserving the presumption of innocence and fair procedures.

An answer, with a deadline

Set statutory service clocks for routine applications and information requests. A missed deadline must trigger escalation and an explanation. Publish total elapsed time, including transferred cases. Independent appeals must be available when a secrecy label or administrative delay blocks accountability.

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

A person must answer for the machine.

Technology should make your life easier. It should not leave you arguing with a screen about your benefits, your licence or your right to be treated fairly.

A right to human review

Give anyone affected by a consequential automated public decision a clear explanation and review by an official empowered to change it. Acknowledge appeals within five working days and normally decide them within 30. Preserve urgent support while credible errors are examined.

A public register of algorithms

By 2073, register public systems that affect eligibility, enforcement or access to services. Publish their purpose, owner, evaluation and appeal route. Independently test accuracy and unequal error rates before deployment, and suspend systems that cannot meet lawful standards.

No mandatory digital identity

Make a secure digital wallet optional. Keep telephone, paper and assisted routes to essential services. Separate permissions by purpose and prohibit using a service account to build a general political or social profile of its holder.

Your data, a visible trail

Let people see which agency accessed their record and why, subject to narrowly authorised investigative delays. Require consent or specific statutory authority for reuse. Give individuals a simple way to correct shared errors across the agencies that received them.

Keep private messages secure

Reject general encryption backdoors. Investigators must use specific, lawful powers under judicial supervision. Protect responsible security research and require public suppliers to report vulnerabilities and serious incidents, with workable support for smaller organisations.

Public technology without lock-in

Buy interoperable systems with portable data, staged delivery and credible exit plans. Require human testing before large rollouts. Publish whole-life costs and verify savings after delivery; a vendor's projection cannot fund another spending promise.

01 / LIBERTY UNDER LAW

Safe streets. Equal justice.

Freedom includes the confidence to walk home, run a shop and report a crime. A lawful, effective justice system protects ordinary people and constrains those who wield power.

Neighbourhood policing that responds

Give communities named local policing teams and publish response times by urgency. Prioritise violence, burglary and repeat antisocial offending. Fund staffing and training through transparent local plans, with independent complaints and clear limits on intrusive powers.

Get cases heard sooner

Audit court backlogs and publish funded plans for judges, support staff and courtrooms. Use early case management and accessible digital filing without removing personal access. Track time to resolution while protecting the independence of individual decisions.

Protect victims and witnesses

Offer a named contact, clear case updates and specialist support for domestic and sexual violence. Enforce protective orders promptly. Share essential information between services lawfully so victims do not have to repeat traumatic accounts unnecessarily.

Fraud is a serious crime

Join specialist police, financial regulators and prosecutors against organised fraud and cybercrime. Require prompt preservation of evidence and clear reporting channels. Recover criminal assets through court orders, with safeguards for innocent owners and victims seeking restitution.

Punishment that reduces reoffending

Match sentences to harm and risk. Expand supervised work, treatment and education where evidence supports them, with firm consequences for breach. Inspect prisons independently and publish safety and reoffending outcomes rather than judging success by occupancy alone.

Fair access to a defence

Protect legal representation, disclosure duties and the presumption of innocence. Review legal-aid thresholds and court fees against access to justice. Public safety must not depend on wrongful convictions or a system only wealthy litigants can use.

Opportunity open to everyone.

The first job. The new firm. A home of your own. A fair chance should not depend on who you know.

ROOM TO BUILD A LIFE

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

Fair work. A fair chance to be hired.

A first job should be a beginning. A better job should be within reach. We will replace the government's labour settlement with rules that protect people without closing the door to newcomers.

Freedom to join, freedom to decline

Protect voluntary unions, collective bargaining and the right to organise without retaliation. Prohibit compulsory membership and ideological loyalty conditions. Require an independently supervised secret ballot before exclusive representation, with a fair, accessible process to change representatives.

A genuine first chance

Allow a clear probation period of up to three months, with written terms, proportionate notice and reasons for dismissal. Apply pay, safety, discrimination and whistleblowing protections from day one. Afterwards, require fair procedures and accessible independent adjudication.

Share the cost of family leave

Replace large individual employer liabilities with pooled parental and serious-illness insurance, covering eligible employees and opt-in self-employed workers. Publish actuarial costs, contribution rates and a benefit cap before enactment. Protect accrued rights and avoid an unfunded transfer to taxpayers.

Help people through change

Replace the automation levy with employer transition plans, consultation and portable retraining support. Large redundancies still require proportionate notice and assistance. Fund approved training from consolidated, audited programmes; do not make a business pay a tax on hypothetical efficiency gains.

A regulator both sides can trust

Give the Fair Work Commission balanced worker and employer representation, independent legal expertise and published conflict rules. Use proportionate penalties and a chance to correct first administrative mistakes. Keep strong sanctions for wage theft, unsafe work and deliberate evasion.

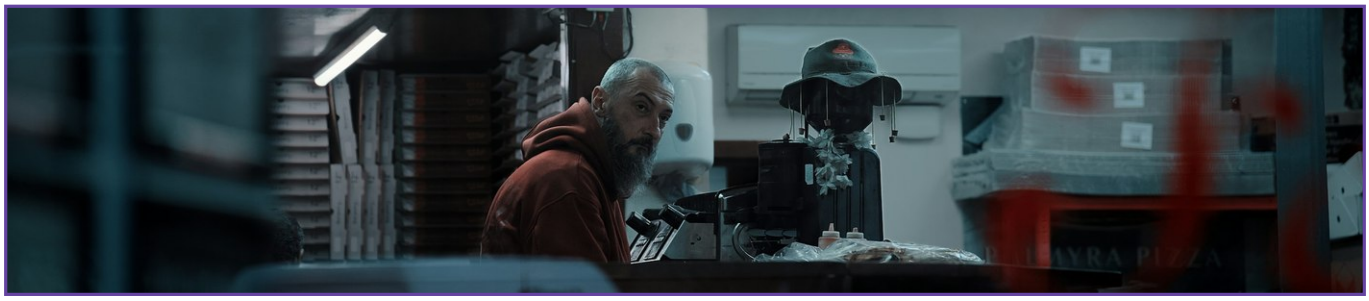

Change the law fairly

Apply new rules prospectively and protect wages, leave and claims already accrued. End compulsory board-seat quotas while allowing voluntary worker representation, employee ownership and cooperatives. Replace uncapped employment guarantees with appropriated, evaluated support and publish the transition before commencement.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

Let the next business get through.

Caprica should reward a useful idea and a satisfied customer. It should not reward the incumbent best able to hire lawyers, shape regulations or keep competitors out.

A Small Business Freedom Act

Create one registration process with standard incorporation completed within one working day of a complete application. Publish a single compliance calendar and reuse authorised information. Safety, professional and environmental approvals remain explicit, with decisions that can be appealed.

Challenge a barrier to entry

Let small firms petition an independent competition panel to review licensing rules that protect incumbents without a demonstrated public benefit. Require a public response within 90 days. Recommend repeal or simplification to Parliament while retaining justified safety standards.

Public contracts within reach

Split suitable contracts into workable lots and make insurance, experience and turnover requirements proportionate. Accept equivalent credentials and publish decisions. Pay undisputed small-business invoices within 20 working days, with automatic interest and obligations passed down to prime contractors.

Break dependency on a single platform

Give the Competition Authority effective powers against exclusionary conduct, with judicial safeguards. Require justified interoperability and data portability remedies where market power blocks switching. Scrutinise acquisitions of emerging rivals and preferential treatment for politically connected firms.

A simple route back after failure

Streamline restructuring for viable small firms and provide a clear path out of honest insolvency. Protect employees, creditors and fraud investigations. A failed first venture should not create a permanent ban on trying again.

Rules tested in the real workplace

Require small-business impact assessments for major economic regulations and review burdens after implementation. Put sunset dates on experimental rules. Publish compliance costs and actual outcomes; simplicity must be demonstrated to the people doing the paperwork.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

Keep more of the next step forward.

Working another shift, learning a skill or starting a firm should improve your position. Clear taxes and dependable support matter more than a headline promise that disappears in the next budget.

A dependable earnings credit

Retain the negative income tax principle and publish a single tax-and-benefit schedule showing how extra earnings affect take-home pay. Reconcile payments fairly and provide human review of errors. Cost any expansion against the verified 2072 fiscal baseline.

Stop hidden rises through thresholds

Restore predictable annual CPI indexation of personal tax thresholds. If Parliament suspends indexation, require an explicit vote, a stated duration and published household effects. Make the cost visible alongside any other tax measure.

Childcare help when the bill arrives

Keep refundable childcare support equal across family structures and pay eligible assistance monthly. Maintain provider accreditation and publish take-up. Expansion must be matched by childcare places, staffing and recurring funding so relief does not simply raise fees.

Investment before paperwork

Provide immediate expensing for qualifying productive investment under clear anti-abuse rules. Publish stable treatment of machinery, software and research costs. Independently cost changes and phase them within the fiscal framework, including effects on small firms and new entrants.

Ownership for the people doing the work

Allow qualifying employee share awards to be taxed when value can be realised, with limits against disguised salary. Simplify employee ownership trusts and voluntary profit-sharing. Publish eligibility and fiscal costs; participation must remain a choice.

A tax code you can plan around

Publish a four-year tax roadmap with advance notice and independent distributional analysis for major changes. Preserve simple, broad bases and avoid retrospective liabilities. Make further rate cuts conditional on durable funding, rather than borrowing to meet an election slogan.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

A front door of your own.

A country that asks young people to work hard must let them build a life. Our housing plan starts with serviced land, permission to build and a fair chance to rent securely while saving.

A new target, a measured starting point

Aim for 50% more annual home completions by 2076 than the independently verified 2072 total. Publish that baseline and regional capacity plans within 100 days. Report starts, completions and affordability separately; permissions alone do not count as homes.

Permission with a clock

Decide complete applications within 120 days in designated growth areas and 60 days for compliant infill. Missed deadlines trigger fee refunds and an independent appeal, not automatic approval of unsafe buildings. Publish reasons for refusals and delays.

Homes around useful connections

Allow well-designed apartments and homes above shops near stations and town centres, with infrastructure and safety conditions. Release suitable public land through transparent tenders carrying construction deadlines. Prevent land banking through enforceable contracts and recovery clauses.

Services before the moving van

Agree funded local compacts for water, transport, schools and clinics alongside new housing. Recover an appropriate share through disclosed development contributions and land-value gains. Stress-test receipts and publish maintenance obligations before committing public finance.

Rent without starting from zero

Introduce portable tenancy deposits, clear repair duties and secure written agreements. Provide a fast tribunal route for serious disrepair and deposit disputes, with fair landlord possession procedures. Improve supply instead of relying on blanket rent freezes.

A first-home route that adds homes

Target any capped shared-ownership support at additional construction, with transparent resale terms and independently costed places. Permit smaller, accessible homes and voluntary downsizing. Avoid broad buyer subsidies that compete for the same limited stock.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

Give every child a strong beginning.

Good schools open possibilities before family connections can close them. We will back demanding teaching, calm classrooms and early help, with parents able to see how their child is doing.

Help before school begins

Offer a language and development check two years before school, followed by timely support. Join education, health and care assessments with parental consent and privacy safeguards. Fund early intervention before claiming any future savings.

Master the foundations

Protect daily reading, writing and mathematics, supported by evidence-based materials and regular diagnostic checks. Maintain science, history and civic knowledge. Give teachers professional freedom within clear national expectations and publish progress with context.

Let teachers teach

Remove duplicated reporting and provide strong classroom training, useful lesson resources and paid routes into shortage subjects. Reward excellent teachers who remain in the classroom. Use fair support and performance procedures when pupils are not receiving adequate teaching.

Calm, safe classrooms

Set clear behaviour expectations and keep phones out of instructional time, with health and disability exceptions. Address absence and repeated disruption early. Support alternative provision where necessary without concealing excluded children from performance figures.

Support without repeated battles

Provide one coordinator and a legal timetable for additional-needs plans. Protect regional-language teaching alongside proficiency in the national language. Join transport, meals and disability support so access to a classroom is practical as well as legal.

Prepare for independent life

Teach contracts, personal finance, media verification and constitutional rights. Give every pupil impartial advice on apprenticeships, technical college and university. Publish completion and destination information while protecting small groups and recognising different starting points.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

Talent should outrun connections.

A qualification should open a door. A discovery should have somewhere to grow. We will give technical skill, independent research and the next generation of founders a fair chance.

A first step into working life

By 2074, offer under-25s who have spent four months outside work or education a suitable paid apprenticeship, job or accredited training place within a further 90 days. Fund places before enrolment and publish completion and sustained-employment outcomes.

Skills you can take with you

Create portable training accounts from consolidated, audited programmes, with additional employer contributions permitted. Approve courses against quality and employment evidence. Publish annual spending caps and do not count unused levy balances until existing claims are checked.

Fair entry to a profession

Require publicly regulated professions to justify experience barriers and recognise equivalent competence. Set deadlines for qualification recognition and permit supervised practice where safe. Assess language ability only to the level genuinely required for the role.

Technical education with real standing

Build regional college partnerships in construction, maritime engineering, health, energy and cybersecurity. Employers must help design placements without capturing admissions. Make qualifications portable and show learners costs, completion rates and employment ranges before they commit.

Protect independent discovery

Defend academic freedom, university autonomy and peer-reviewed research. Use stable, competitive grants and proportionate security safeguards. Political agreement with the government must never be a condition of a scientific award or academic appointment.

A simpler route from lab to firm

Introduce standard licensing terms for publicly supported discoveries, transparent ownership and small, competitive proof-of-concept awards. Allow enterprise leave and shared facilities for new researchers. Set funding limits and review results before expanding a programme.

02 / OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO EVERYONE

A future close to home.

Opportunity should reach a fishing harbour, a farming town and a regional high street. Local people need usable connections and the authority to solve problems they know first-hand.

Local budgets, clear responsibility

Agree multiyear regional compacts for transport, skills and water, with named delivery bodies and national minimum standards. Publish the source of every allocation and a resident's route to appeal. Devolution must not become a way to pass blame.

Keep value in farming communities

Support shared processing, cold storage and efficient equipment through open, time-limited competitions. Require producer access and private co-investment where practical. Publish costs and results instead of subsidising politically favoured firms indefinitely.

Clean water comes first

Publish rural water testing and risk-based repair schedules. Prioritise health hazards and leakage before prestige projects. Support stewardship agreements that reward verified protection of soil, habitats and catchments, with clear obligations on recipients.

Small ports, dependable routes

Tender essential freight and ferry services openly with reliability standards and capped subsidies. Test harbour upgrades for safety and economic value. Protect fair access for smaller producers and report cancellations and actual service performance.

A connection that reaches the workshop

Map broadband gaps and tender support where commercial delivery will not meet a defined standard. Require open wholesale access for publicly supported networks. Include storm resilience and affordable service options for remote clinics, schools and businesses.

Respect place and language

Protect lawful regional cultural life and local-language access where practical. Manage fisheries through independent stock assessments and transparent allocations. Give communities a voice in development while preserving national rights, open competition and equal citizenship.

A country you can count on.

Timely care. Reliable connections. Steady partnerships. Promises paid for honestly.

FOUNDATIONS THAT LAST

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Lead reform. Keep our place in the CU.

Caprica can defend its interests without insulting its partners or threatening the livelihoods tied to them. We will seek a better Columbian Union from a position of committed membership.

A clear commitment to membership

Reject withdrawal threats as a routine negotiating tactic. Honour lawful treaty obligations and restore predictable diplomacy. Any proposed change to Caprica's treaty position must follow constitutional procedures, published impact assessments and parliamentary approval.

A CU Reform Compact

Within six months, publish proposals for transparent contributions, independently audited common programmes and stronger scrutiny by national parliaments. Seek review clauses for shared spending and a clear division between Union, national and local responsibilities.

Make the common market work for small firms

Negotiate mutual recognition of professional qualifications and compatible product, procurement and digital trade rules. Provide practical export advice and affordable dispute resolution. Publish progress and barriers remaining rather than claiming gains before partners agree.

Share the tasks that need partners

Deepen cooperation on maritime surveillance, disaster response, energy interconnection and protection of subsea cables. Define contributions, command responsibilities and parliamentary oversight. Joint action should strengthen Caprica's capacity and remain accountable to its citizens.

Diplomacy with a steady purpose

Apply the Bluespan Doctrine: protect trade, keep commitments and understand the limits of force. Build on the Kaoqing Communique and normalisation with OURS, support Kerevan's territorial integrity and pursue a Twin Strait crisis hotline.

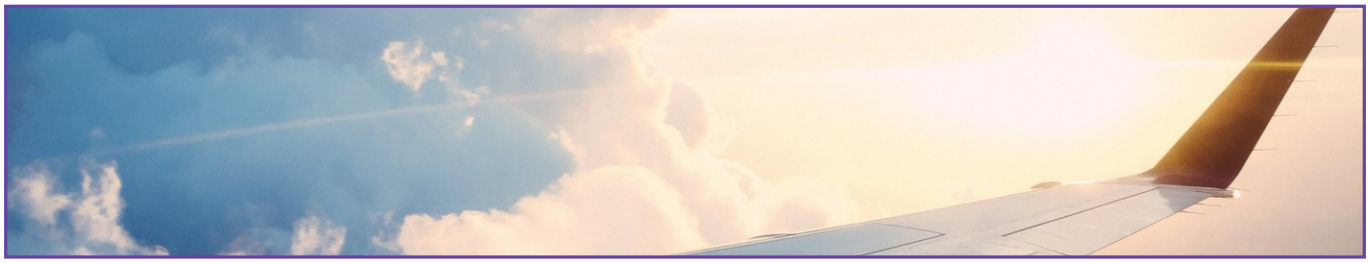

Explain the result to Parliament

Present an annual account of treaty commitments, negotiations, costs and outcomes. Publish independent scrutiny of significant agreements before ratification. Protect necessary negotiating confidentiality temporarily, with reasons, rather than treating foreign policy as a private presidential performance.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

An open country with dependable rules.

Trade brings customers. New skills bring possibilities. Confidence in an open Caprica rests on fair rules, secure borders and public services that keep pace with change.

More markets, less dependence

Pursue agreements in services, food, maritime commerce and clean technology across Columbia, Albeuman and other partners. Publish likely adjustment costs as well as opportunities. Diversify critical buyers and suppliers so a single market cannot dictate our choices.

Secure infrastructure, clear investment rules

Screen foreign control of critical infrastructure and sensitive technologies using defined criteria and deadlines. Provide reasons and appeal where security permits. Coordinate lawful responses to economic coercion with partners and state the conditions for ending exceptional measures.

Plan growth with communities

Ask Parliament to set indicative annual migration ranges using skill needs, housing, service capacity and humanitarian duties. Link settlement planning to infrastructure funding. Train people already in Caprica while recruiting for genuine shortages.

One fair standard at work

Enforce pay, safety and anti-discrimination rules for every worker. License high-risk recruitment intermediaries and punish wage theft and trafficking. Permit lawful routes to change an abusive sponsor so an employer cannot control a person's future by withholding consent.

Timely, fair protection decisions

Aim for initial asylum decisions within six months through funded casework and legal support. Preserve independent appeals and humane reception. Enforce final lawful refusals while respecting the prohibition on return to persecution.

Help newcomers contribute

Provide accessible language and civics routes, fair qualification recognition and clear citizenship requirements. Use job-related language standards rather than treating a foreign accent as a disqualification. Equal citizenship carries shared constitutional duties and respect for lawful cultural life.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Strong enough to protect our home.

An island country needs open sea lanes, protected infrastructure and forces ready for the missions Parliament gives them. Capability begins with trained people and equipment that works.

Put maritime security first

Prioritise the navy, air force, maritime surveillance and protection of ports, energy links and subsea cables. Cost complete capabilities, including crews, training, ammunition and maintenance. Avoid buying platforms that the country cannot afford to operate.

A mobile, professional army

Organise land forces around mobile formations, coastal defence, engineering and reinforcement with CU partners. Match numbers to missions and available lift. Any restructuring must protect readiness and give personnel a funded transition plan.

One lawful chain of command

Place military units under civilian defence authority and parliamentary funding. Intelligence agencies may support lawful missions but cannot run a parallel armed force. Audit transferred capabilities and retain records needed for independent investigations.

Readiness you can account for

Publish a ten-year capability plan with annual funding and classified readiness scrutiny. Disclose procurement risks, contract changes and whole-life costs. Reallocate savings only after transition costs are paid and the savings are verified.

Respect the people who serve

Provide dependable housing, healthcare, training and family support. Make qualifications portable into civilian work and improve access to veterans' care. Track retention and equipment availability alongside recruitment numbers.

Clear limits on the use of force

Require lawful authority, achievable objectives and an exit plan for deployments. Seek parliamentary approval except for immediate defence, followed by prompt review. Reject open-ended wars to impose political systems and protect compliance with humanitarian obligations.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Keep the country working through a shock.

A storm, cyberattack or disrupted shipping route should not leave a community without a plan. Resilience means preparation people can understand and services that have practised their response.

Thirty days of essential continuity

By 2074, require risk-based continuity plans for water, healthcare, communications, food distribution and power. Design for 30 days of disruption using diversified supply, reserves and mutual assistance. Publish readiness gaps without exposing operational vulnerabilities.

Test the plan in real conditions

Run annual national and regional exercises involving utilities, hospitals, ports and local authorities. Test backup power, communications and restoration times. Publish independent findings and fund the highest-priority corrections before expanding less urgent programmes.

Reserves with a purpose

Maintain targeted reserves of essential medicines, fuel and critical components against assessed risks. Rotate stocks, audit contracts and publish aggregate costs. Avoid speculative stockpiles or purchases whose maintenance costs have no budget.

A practical local response

Support trained civil-defence volunteers, accessible shelters and clear evacuation information. Include people with disabilities, isolated residents and households without digital access. Name the authority responsible for each local plan.

Protect the networks we share

Map dependencies between electricity, telecommunications, transport and water. Require tested recovery plans from critical operators and proportionate security standards for suppliers. Share threat information lawfully and practise coordinated restoration.

Recovery without a permanent emergency

Set transparent eligibility for disaster support, publish awards and audit emergency contracts. Keep exceptional powers temporary and reviewable. Rebuild to reduce repeat losses, using insurance and mitigation where they offer better value than repeated compensation.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Care that reaches you in time.

Universal care must mean more than a place in a queue. We will organise services around the next appointment, the next treatment and the person who needs help getting there.

A reachable first appointment

Phase in same-day urgent primary care and routine appointments within seven days as staffing permits. Expand safe nurse practitioner and pharmacist roles. Publish unmet demand as well as booked waits, so people unable to obtain an appointment remain visible.

A waiting-time right with capacity behind it

Set clinically defined maximum elective waits. Where a commissioner misses the standard, arrange suitable accredited alternative treatment at no extra charge. Implement only when referral agreements, staffing and funding are in place; apply common quality standards to every provider.

Mental health without repeated referrals

Provide a named navigator and one assessment pathway. By 2074, aim for first clinical contact within 14 days for urgent nonemergency referrals under 25. Emergencies need immediate assessment. Publish subsequent treatment waits so contact is followed by care.

Follow diagnosis through to treatment

Join screening, diagnostics, treatment and rehabilitation through regional pathways. Invest in proven techniques and publish delays at each stage. Provide outreach and transport support where distance prevents timely treatment.

A record that follows the patient

Give patients access to shared health records with correction rights, permission controls and audited emergency access. Share only what authorised care requires. Keep personal appointments and assisted routes for those who cannot use digital services.

Measure the care people receive

Use common safety, infection, mortality and patient-experience measures across public and independent providers. Give an independent inspector power to require improvements. Check that contracts do not reward avoiding complex patients.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Security through every stage of life.

Families make commitments that last longer than a parliamentary term. Caring, disability and retirement need dependable support, with room to choose how to live.

Care that fits working life

Support accredited childcare beyond standard office hours and allow monthly refundable assistance. Apply equal rules across family structures. Publish local shortages and fund expansion through verified staffing and recurring resources.

A break for unpaid carers

Protect caregiver support and pension recognition for intensive caring periods. Establish a funded minimum respite offer by 2074, phased with workforce capacity. Give carers a named coordinator and a clear appeal route.

Independence with practical support

Join home adaptations, community transport and health assessments. Support workplace adjustments and supervised return to work. Essential disability care must follow assessed need rather than vanish when someone tries employment or a course.

Make benefits easier to understand

Publish how earnings, caring and household changes affect support. Phase withdrawals predictably and provide prompt human review of mistakes. Test reforms against actual household budgets before implementation.

Protect earned retirement rights

Honour accrued pensions and publish a long-term sustainability review. Any prospective change requires independent costing, clear notice and transition protection. Prioritise dependable basic support instead of promising permanent increases from temporary receipts.

Housing and care that work together

Expand accessible homes and community care through local plans, with clear quality standards. Make downsizing voluntary and support ageing at home where safe. Inspect residential services independently and publish action taken on serious failings.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Reliable power at a fair cost.

Households need predictable bills. Employers need power they can rely on. Climate responsibility and energy security should be pursued through transparent costs, competition and dependable infrastructure.

Buy reliability as well as generation

Let low-carbon technologies, storage and demand response compete against common cost, safety and reliability standards. Publish system costs and contract liabilities. Plan firm capacity for difficult weather and peak demand rather than counting installed capacity alone.

Connect projects ready to build

Reform grid queues around transparent readiness milestones and release unused reservations. Publish connection capacity and timetables. Protect landowners' rights and require fair compensation where infrastructure imposes a material burden.

A stable climate framework

Keep a predictable emissions framework with independent monitoring and parliamentary scrutiny of changes. Disclose effects on households and exposed industries. Use targeted, temporary transition support rather than permanent exemptions for politically influential firms.

A household share of carbon revenue

Return at least half of net emissions-auction receipts to households through a transparent mechanism. Reserve part of the remainder against volatility before funding eligible investment. Do not use uncertain auction income for permanent payroll commitments.

Help homes waste less energy

Prioritise independently assessed insulation and efficiency improvements for vulnerable households and the worst-performing homes. Accredit installers, inspect work and provide redress. Report realised savings and costs instead of relying on sales forecasts.

Strengthen links with our neighbours

Pursue CU interconnection and shared emergency arrangements with clear cost allocation and national oversight. Diversify supplies and protect critical infrastructure. Agree practical assistance before a disruption makes negotiation harder.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Make the everyday journey dependable.

A late train, leaking pipe or unfinished road becomes time and money lost at home. We will put maintenance, useful capacity and honest project management ahead of ceremonial announcements.

Repair before decline becomes failure

Publish asset condition registers and multiyear maintenance plans for roads, rail and water. Rank work by safety, reliability and economic value. Protect maintenance funding within approved budgets instead of treating it as the first source of cuts.

Transport that joins up

Integrate timetables and accessible ticketing where it improves journeys. Publish cancellations, crowding and reliability by route. Let local authorities choose accountable service models, with open contracts and comparable performance data.

Build homes and connections together

Coordinate station-area housing, regional rail and utility expansion through funded local agreements. Test the southern rail corridor and other major schemes against demand, alternatives and whole-life cost before final approval.

Water you can trust

Require public reporting of leakage, discharge incidents and drinking-water safety. Set independently assessed repair priorities and enforce environmental duties. Make ownership or financing changes prove their service benefit before proceeding.

A project has a responsible owner

Give every major scheme a named accountable authority, reference design, realistic cost range and maintenance budget. Publish procurement changes and delays. Use independent stage reviews before releasing further funds.

Stop weak projects early

Compare repair, smaller upgrades and demand management before approving new megaprojects. Disclose guarantees and compensation risks. Cancel or redesign poor proposals through lawful contracts when evidence changes, with an explanation of the costs already incurred.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

Start with the books as they are.

After four years in opposition, we will not pretend that a 2068 figure describes the finances of 2072. Responsible government begins with an independently examined opening balance sheet.

An opening audit within 100 days

Publish gross debt, net debt, assets, arrears, guarantees and contingent liabilities, including intelligence spending and employment schemes. Give the independent fiscal body access to records and publish uncertainty. Do not conceal obligations inside state enterprises or off-budget funds.

A credible path to falling debt

Set the first budget on a certified path to a falling gross-debt-to-GDP ratio by 2076 under normal conditions. Report the statutory net debt measure separately. Set annual milestones from the audited baseline instead of inventing a starting ratio.

Permanent promises need permanent funding

Finance ongoing services and tax relief from recurring revenue or verified permanent savings. Protect sovereign wealth principal. Do not count asset sales, hoped-for growth or unverified efficiency gains as recurring income.

An expenditure framework with choices

Set four-year departmental ceilings alongside service standards and demographic pressures. Parliament must approve new permanent commitments and their funding. Include operating costs, benefit take-up, insurance risks and implementation costs in every proposal.

A correction, not a concealment

If the fiscal body finds the debt path has slipped, publish a response within 30 days showing options and household effects. Parliament will determine the adjustment. Avoid automatic cuts that deepen a recession or remove essential services without alternatives.

Limited exceptions for genuine shocks

Allow temporary, voted departures for severe recession, disaster or security emergencies, with an expenditure ceiling and quarterly reporting. Automatic stabilisers must be allowed to operate. Renew exceptions after no more than 12 months and publish a return plan.

03 / A COUNTRY YOU CAN COUNT ON

A programme with a funding test.

This manifesto sets commitments and their funding conditions. It does not claim to be a fully costed budget. No spending expansion begins without published costs, appropriation and the capacity to deliver.

Publish the cost before the vote

Release ten-year cost ranges, assumptions, distributional effects and independent assessment before budget legislation. Distinguish firm allocations, phased ambitions and contingent proposals. Explain sequencing changes publicly when the opening audit requires them.

Rights and oversight first

Prioritise repeal legislation, warrants, inspector capacity and open registers in the first budget. Publish transition costs and preserve lawful security functions. Count any savings from ending duplicate formations only after liabilities and personnel transitions are met.

Pool leave on an honest basis

Legislate parental and serious-illness insurance only with published actuarial work, contribution rates, benefit limits and a reserve policy. Consult workers and firms on the balance. Protect existing claims while phasing the new settlement within appropriated transition funding.

Build with disciplined investment

Use transparent land receipts and development contributions for housing infrastructure where justified. Borrow only for tested investment within the debt framework. Stress-test falling land values and interest costs, and never allocate one receipt to two programmes.

Redirect only money that is available

Consolidate overlapping training and business-support schemes after auditing contracts and service effects. Fund care expansion from identified multiyear allocations. Expected prevention benefits and future productivity gains are reasons for reform, not cash available today.

Keep liabilities visible and bounded

Replace uncapped guarantees with voted ceilings and eligibility rules, protecting lawful accrued claims. Publish public-private commitments, defence contracts and insurance exposure. Require independent evaluation before expanding pilots or renewing temporary support.

THE TEST OF OUR NEXT TERM

Publish the promise. Report the result.

The dates below are proposed milestones. Service expansions depend on voted funding, staffing and the safeguards in each policy chapter.

2073

Make power visible.

Publish the automated-decision register, operating rules for new oversight bodies and open contracting information. Report the progress of liberty and employment legislation, including any provisions Parliament amends.

2074

Make the first improvements usable.

Target the youth work and training offer, mental-health first-contact standard and carers' respite offer. Publish service capacity, actual waits and unmet need. Test national continuity arrangements against the 30-day objective.

2076

Judge the change in everyday life.

Aim for 50% more annual home completions than the verified 2072 baseline and a falling gross-debt-to-GDP ratio under normal conditions. Report real wages, business entry and service access without claiming control over every economic outcome.

Every quarter, an account you can challenge.

Name the responsible minister, publish the baseline and show delivery against each commitment. Independent auditors will test the evidence. Missed milestones need an explanation and a revised plan, not a renamed target.

THE CHOICE IN 2072

Your freedom.
Your future.

A fair chance to build a life.
A government you can trust.

VOTE LCA.
VOTE LIBERTY.

Explore the programme and meet the team.

manualalan.github.io/mr2072